

Our Belief

Building better financial futures for young people in need

At Saffron Building Society we believe in planning for the future. It's why, for the past 175 years, we've helped people in Essex and beyond do exactly that.

We know that money management can bring happiness today, protect us against life's surprises, and support future security.

And we strongly believe that everyone should have the opportunity to develop these financial skills.

Sadly, for young people those most in need and at risk often lack financial resilience. Schooling may have been interrupted or support with money skills non-existent. Yet with the right tools they can flourish, support themselves and live full and active lives within their communities.

Be they care leavers, from troubled families, overcoming trauma or mental health issues, starting in our Essex heartland we pledge to support young people most in need as they start their adult lives.

We've partnered with MyBnk – a leader in high-impact financial education – to fund expert-led training that enables young people to take charge of their finances.

This life-changing work is part of Saffron's vision for everyone to have the support they need to build better financial futures for themselves. We call it 'building society for years to come', because our commitment to our local communities lasts a lifetime.
